FOUGHT FOR HIS WIFE.

[Arkansaw Traveler.]

"Bill, I must say that you ought to be ashamed of yourself.

"I don't see why, Mrs. Collins."

"You don't see why? You must be as blind as a bat."

"But I hope that I am not so tough."

"Oh, go on away, Bill, and don't bother me."

Mrs. Collins was a widow. She owned a farm in southern Arkansaw, stood high in the society of the neighborhood, and was consequently happy. Bill Spotts was an 18-year-old boy. He had fallen in love with Mrs. Collins, and as the neighbors expressed it, was dead set upon marrying her. Although ordered to go away, and although the manner as well as the words of Mrs. Collins plainly indicated that the boy was wasting his time, yet, undaunted, he lingered in that rich abundance of hope which for a time accompanies youth along the road of life.

"I will not go, Mrs. Collins, until I have had a satisfactory answer."

"I told you no!"

"But 'no' is not satisfactory."

"Now, look here, Bill, I want you to go away and let me alone. I've got work to do, I want you to understand."

"Oh, I understand, and I am perfectly willing to help you do your work."

"Bill, why don't you marry some young girl?"

"Because I want to marry you."

"Why do you want to marry me?"

"Because I love you."

"Why do you love me?"

"Because I can't help it."

"Am I so handsome as all that?"

"You are the prettiest thing I ever saw."

"You are complimentary, I must say, but a man—or rather a boy should be sensible as well as complimentary."

"I think the persistency with which I urge my suit shows my sense."

"It does not; it only shows your pig-headedness."

"You are equally pigheaded."

"My goodness, boy, go on away from here and let me see a moment's peace."

"Then I would be eternally miserable. Say, Mrs. Collins, will you please state your objections to me."

"You are too young. My son Dan is as old as you are. He is equally as large and I haven't the least doubt but he could whip you right now. A step-son should never be able to whip his step-father. Dan is always hungry for a fight, and to thresh you every day would be the delight of his soul. That would be embarrassing to me, for no woman likes to see her husband whipped."

Bill reflected seriously. "I had not thought of that," he said. "Say, Mrs. Collins, we might make a compromise with Dan."

"No, such a thing would be impossible, for Dan has often said that he intends to whip the man I marry."

"I respect your objections, Mrs. Collins, but I do not intend to be cheated out of my rights."

"What can you no?"

"I must whip Dan."

"Impossible."

"No, it is not impossible. I'll take boxing and wrestling lessons until I can down him every time. Then he will respect me."

"Now Bill, I am going to be frank. I love you—never mind, sit down. I will aid you all I can, and when I see that you are able to whip Dan, I will marry you."

"Enough said," Bill joyously exclaimed. "I will go at once and see that boxing man."

II.

Hank Jasper, a retired boxer, lived about two miles from the Collins place. Bill called on him and explained his urgent need of fist science.

"I can soon give you muscle and slight," said Jasper. "Three lessons a week for two months will fix you all right. Of course, I'll have to charge you pretty well."

"Oh, never mind the cost," Bill replied.

"Well, we'll begin at once."

Bill, with an ardor which such a cause would naturally inspire, began the work of preparation. He hung up a sand-bag in his room, and with charcoal, drew on one side of it, what he conceived to be a likeness of Dan Collins.

"Now, Mr. Collins," he would say, as he rolled up his sleeves and squinted at the bag, "I am prepared to give you another mauling. Don't want me to marry your mother, eh? Don't think that I am entitled to the rights of an American citizen? Reckon you have told your mother that you intend to whale me, eh? Well, we'll see."

Then he would dash at the pretended image of the youth who stood between him and his heart's desire, and it may be strange to say, he was always successful.

Jasper took great interest in the student and so far forgot his professional etiquette as to let the youth have some of his deepest secrets of the science. He assured the lover that he could not fall short of victory, and on several occasions, shook hands with him in a congratulatory manner.

One day, just before the two months of training had expired, Bill, while riding along the road, met young Collins.

"Say, Bill, ma tells me that you want to marry her."

"Yes, what have you got to say about it?"

Dan laughed. "What have I got to say about it, why confound your hide, do you suppose that I would allow such a plug ugly as you are to marry my mother? Why, I'd have to call you out early every morning."

"What for?"

"To take your whipping."

"It would take a better man than you to whip me, Dan Collins."

"Yes, that's what you think, but whenever you feel like trying your hand, just come over and I will give a few touches that will show you who is in the field."

"Dan, blowing amounts to nothing, but say, if I whip you fairly—whip you until you are satisfied, will you then agree that if I marry your mother you will behave yourself?"

"Yes."

"All right. Let's see: Suppose that we give each other a trial next Saturday."

"I'm willing."

"Shall it be private?"

"No, we want to invite all the neighbors."

"All right, and to make the thing more binding, we'll have papers drawn up, stating the object of the contest. These articles of agreement shall be read before the contest begins, and judges from the crowd shall be selected."

"That suits me."

III.

The arrangements were completed. The neighborhood was greatly excited. Hundreds of temporary benches, forming an arena, were constructed. Although the crops were not "laid by," people from all parts of the country flocked to see the combat. The neighborhood band, composed of three fiddlers, two banjo pickers and the agitator of a triangle took an assigned position and soothed the crowd with sweet symphonies. Bill had cordially invited Professor Jasper, but the professor, declaring that such scenes were a bore to him, declined.

Time was called. Handkerchiefs fluttered. Everything bore a tremulous aspect. Bill was dressed in a red flannel shirt and a closely-fitting pair of cottonade trousers. Dan wore a hickory shirt and nankeen trousers.

The band played "Nigger on the Woodpile," an inspiring tune, and then the combat began. Both young men capered in the agile movement of improved science. Bill caught Dan under the jaw, but, quickly recovering himself, Dan knocked Bill down. Then there was dancing in imperious haste. The combatants flew at each other, but neither one could secure a conquering advantage. At last, however, Dan got Bill down and bumped his devoted head against the face of the earth. Bill modestly remarked that he had enough for one time only. Dan let him get up, and the judges announced that the widow's son had gained the victory.

"Mrs. Collins," said Bill when the crowd had dispersed, "I am in hard luck. If my arms were as strong as my love, I would have knocked Dan over into an adjoining township."

"Don't despair, Bill."

"Oh, now, sweet thing, I shall devote myself to study and will try him again."

When Bill went to his room he saw, with the eye of an artist, that the sand-bag picture of Dan was not correct. The first thing he did was to was off the incorrect lines. Then he drew another picture, in which he gave particular prominence to the nose, remembering that Dan's nasal feature was of more than ordinary size. The next day Bill called upon Professor Jasper.

"Professor," said he, "I was downed."

"I am sorry, Billie, but we must try it again."

"Professor, I don't see how it is that an uninstructed man can use his manners so disastrously."

"Main strength, Billie. Main strength can hold out for a while, but it must finally give under. Pay me what you owe and take a dozen more lessons."

Bill paid the professor and again submitted to rigid training. He learned many new dives and, after a while, thought that his science could certainly overcome Dan's strength. He sent Dan a note stating that he desired a fight at an early day. Dan replied as follows:

"My dear unprospective step-father; I whipped you once and I can whip you again. I am willing to give you every possible chance and will do anything for you except let you whip me. For this lack of gallantry I earnestly beg you to excuse me."

Bill raved when he read the note, and, going into his room, mauled the sand bag.

IV.

The time for another battle was appointed. The crowd was even larger than the crowd which first assembled. The band, with the addition of a coon-skin tambourine, made thrilling music. This time Bill wore a blue shirt. His step was firm, his courage indomitable. Dan smiled upon the young ladies and declared that he was confident of success. Bill, remembering the words of the professor, felt happy. He knew that uncultivated strength could not long stand up against science.

When time was called, each man stepped proudly into the arena. Bill caught sight of the widow's face. A great hope swelled within him.

Bill aimed a blow at Dan's nose. Dan dodged, jumped, wheeled his leg around and knocked Bill down. Bill scrambled to his feet and seized Dan. Then, as they waltzed in great hurry, the band played "Hail Jerusalem Home." Bill fell, but unwilling to acknowledge defeat, he squared himself and again entered the encounter. Dan moved around with a grace that surprised every one. The muscles in his arms bulged out the sleeves of his shirt. At an auspicious time, Bill knocked him down, but before the advantage could be seized, he sprang to his feet and gave Bill a blow that brought to view many stars hitherto undiscovered. The audience became almost frantic with excitement. Leading planters bet bales of cotton on the result, and many dollars changed hands. Evidently both men had greatly improved; for while Bill had improved in science, it seemed that Dan had improved in strength.

The result was sad. Dan, catching a curious hold of Bill, threw him. He struck the ground with a loud sound, as though a strong man had struck the bare earth with a board. Bill struggled frantically, but was forced to acknowledge that he was beaten.

"Bill," said the widow, when the noisy crowd had dispersed, "don't give up yet, for you know that I love you."

"I will never give up. The dying sun of future ages will find me fighting for the woman I love."

"Dan's strength is remarkable, but I think that you must eventually wear him out."

"I shall continue, sweet widow.

V.

Again Bill called upon the professor. "I don't understand it," said the lover. "I know that I have improved, but why cannot I conquer him?"

"Ah, my dear man," the professor replied, "the hardest thing in this world to overcome is strength. Science is wonderful—it enables a man, after a while, to come off victorious, but at first it stands—or rather falls," he added in a whisper, "in sore disadvantage. About ten more lessons, I think, will finish the gentleman. Pay me what you owe and we'll begin the third course."

Bill paid him and took up the finishing touches of his degree. He noticed that the nose on the sand-bag was not quite prominent enough, and with improved artistic skill, he drew a picture that could not fail to represent his enemy. Other tired men went to bed, but Bill, persistent man, fought the bag until the rooster shook himself and declared that daylight had come. Thinking that he was undoubtedly capable of vanquishing Dan, Bill sent him a challenge. Dan replied as follows:

"I am glad that you appoint another day of strife. Nothing gives me more pleasure than to whip a friend. I have given you several opportunities, still, you have not married my mother. Why should you delay a marriage that promises such happiness? I had always thought that a lover was ardent, but I must say that your laxity, or rather your weakness, has astonished me. Why don't you go away somewhere and submit yourself to severe training. If I wanted a woman I would be willing to fight for her."

Bill snorted when he read the note. He rushed into his room, made the nose on the sandbag more prominent and mauled the thing in a frightful manner. He was so successful that a bouyant hope swelled within him.

The day for the battle was appointed. The news had spread, and people from adjoining counties assembled. The band had been materially improved. A drum, made of two sheep skins and a nail keg had been added. Additional benches were provided.

Everybody was in a high state of excitement. Again young women smiled on Dan. Again he was sure of success. Bill was dressed in flax breeches and a hunting shirt. Dan was appropriately clad in a yellow muslin shirt and hemp overalls. The band gave a grand burst: women clapped their hands and the combatants took their places. The capering was beautiful. Bill knocked Dan down. The defender of his mother's widowhood arose, but was again knocked down. The people cheered lustily. Bill muttered a prayer and bucked against his assailant. Again Dan went down. Bill jumped on him and compelled him to declare his willingness to the marriage.

The ceremony was performed with great pomp. Young girls scattered flowers all over the yard.

"Well, Dan, I downed you," said Bill.

"Yes, but it was my fault."

"How?"

"I failed to keep up my studies."

"Your studies?"

"Yes. Professor Jasper, quite a while ago, told me what you were doing and gave me lessons at half price."

Bill turned away. He contemplated whipping the professor, but, being persuaded by his wife, allowed the matter to drop. Bill is now a happy step-father.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Restores the color, gloss, and youthful freshness of the hair; stimulates a rich and luxurious growth; thoroughly cleanses the scalp; prevents dandruff and humors; and is the most cleanly and effective preparation for the hair ever offered to the public. Rev. J. W. Davenport, Illinois Bend, Texas, writes: "Ayer's Hair Vigor, used in my family for several years, has no equal as a dressing, nor for preventing the hair from falling out or turning prematurely gray. It ranks among the first luxuries of our house." Miss Kate Rose, Ingersoll, Ontario, writes: "While keeping my head clear of dandruff, and preventing Scald Head, Ayer's Hair Vigor has also caused my hair to grow luxuriantly, resulting in my now possessing hair forty-two inches long, and as thick as could be desired." The wife of Dr. V. S. Lovelace, Lovelaceville, Ky., had very bad tetter sores upon her head, causing the hair to fall out. Ayer's Hair Vigor healed the sores, and in less than twelve months produced hair a foot long.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR.

No More Bald Heads.

To produce a new growth of hair on bald heads, in the case of persons advanced in years, is not always possible. When the glands are decayed and gone, no stimulant can restore them; but, when they are only inactive, from the need of some excitant, the application of Ayer's Hair Vigor will renew their vitality, and a new growth will result. L. V. Templeton, Newbern, N. C., writes: "After a protracted illness, with fever, my hair all came out, leaving me entirely bald. I procured a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, before I had used all its contents, a thick growth of hair, nearly two inches long, covered my head." L. D. McJunkin, Perryville, Md., writes: "Baldness is hereditary in my family. Five years ago the hair on the top of my head was becoming weak and thin. I procured Ayer's Hair Vigor, the application of which invigorated the hair roots, and sent out a new growth of young hair. To-day my hair is as thick and vigorous as ever. I still use the Vigor occasionally to keep my scalp in a healthy condition."

SAUCY CHILE.

Now comes to the front the little South American republic of Chile and through her army and navy officers begins to "cheek" the great republic of the United States. The Chilians have just about squared accounts with a sister republic, Peru, whom they have humbled to the dust and robbed without stint or mercy after destroying or capturing its army and navy and principal towns, and are now casting about for new worlds to conquer. The bare idea that Chile should imagine herself a match for the United States, or that she could for a single day withstand the shock of an encounter with that great power, is sufficient to provoke a smile of contemptuous pity. But leading American papers point out that the boasting of the Chilians is not without reason. They say that the Esmerelda, an ironclad of the Chilian navy, could in a few hours destroy the fortifications of San Francisco and lay that important city under tribute to her 80 ton guns. In the long run, they say, the United States would triumph by sheer weight of numbers and money, but a single Chilian ironclad is more than a match for the whole American navy as at present constituted. This is a serious matter. A war with Chile, which Blaine, when secretary of state, did his best to bring about, would prove disastrous for the Pacific States and in case of the outbreak of hostilities Victoria might awaken some bright morning and find a Chilian fleet, which had just ravaged Washington Territory and California, knocking at her door for supplies that are not contraband of war. Why the Americans should have so inefficient a navy that even so weak a power as a South American republic can boast with a good deal of mirth of superiority, is a matter that astonishes the Americans as much as it does the world.

THE GATLING.

After all, it is doubtful if the Gatling gun was of so very much service in the Northwest campaign. An instrument that would send a shower of rifle balls at the enemy might be considered a very useful article in a fight, provided that the balls should hit anybody. But, it is said, that at Batoche there was only one man found killed with Gatling bullets, and if the report be true that Gen. Middleton set up a barrel on end, and had the Gatling fire at it for a couple of hours at a range of 300 yards, expending several hundred rounds, with the result of only two or three bullet holes in it, we may conclude that the efficacy of this noted gun would lie more in its moral than in its material effect. Its bark would be worse than its bite, though if its bark would only frighten the enemy that might be sufficient. But, anyway, there are a great many bullets fired in battle for every man that is killed, so perhaps the Gatling does not differ much from other forms of artillery.

British Trade Depression.

TO THE EDITOR:—The paragraph in to-day's Colonist is open to criticism. In the first place, Lord Salisbury did not intimate to the deputation of sugar refiners that he lacked power to impose more duties; but, rather, that if he could see his way to enact retaliatory measures with advantage he might do so.

The proposition that England should levy duties on articles imported from countries which charge duty on similar goods exported by England, applies to a case not contemplated by political economists, unless as a temporary and exceptional occurrence. No country, as a permanent branch of trade, exports any merchandise to another country from which it habitually imports similar goods. Such state of things would be confined to what Americans call swapping jack-knives—an unprofitable business. But instances do occur when something of the kind happens temporarily—as where machinery of superior construction is introduced from America and sold in England, the effect being that English makers are led to adopt the improvements of the imported article, and with the advantage of cheaper labor ultimately stop importation.

It is hardly likely that, even avowed protectionists would advocate legislation to meet such cases. In fact, no prominent British politician now talks of a return to protective duties generally; but merely as a retaliatory measure, to induce foreign governments to adopt a policy which they themselves, presumably, consider erroneous. But when we hear of "British trade depression," it should be remembered that the manufacturing portions of the United States have suffered equally, and France to a still greater degree, notwithstanding almost prohibitory tariffs. In all these three countries there has been a dearth of employment and shrinkage of wages; but owing to free trade food and all commodities have been cheap in England, and the sufferings of the poor have been to some extent mitigated.

A Reply.

VICTORIA, August 20, 1885.

TO THE EDITOR:—Mr. Barnard's letter, appearing in your issue of yesterday's date, is as cowardly as the personal attack made upon me. He had an opportunity of meeting me face to face in open court, but instead of doing so he turned tail and pleaded guilty "to an unprovoked and unjustifiable assault," and I was informed by my lawyer and the presiding magistrate that after his so pleading I could not make a statement, which if made would have refuted all the assertions in his letter and placed the true version before the court and the public. This statement on my part he most skilfully avoided being made by pleading guilty and so closing my mouth. Your readers will hardly credit Mr. Barnard's statement when he says he submitted to a fine "out of consideration for me" when he KNEW himself to be as much in the right as he now wishes them to believe by his letter. Yours truly,

CHAS. W. WALLACE.

First Arrest Under the Criminal Law Amendment.

Spanish Irritation Against Germany.

ENGLAND.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—A man, who refused to give his name, was arrested here last Saturday on a charge of having abducted for immoral purposes a young girl under thirteen years of age. As it was the first case of arrest under the provisions of the criminal law amendment act, a great deal of attention is attracted to the prisoner. He attempted to conceal his identity, but it was found to be John Coulbeth, of Surrey, who had for a long time been employed as assistant at 43 Alter lane, and who had been shadowed by the detectives of Scotland yard for eighteen months as a dynamiter.

SPAIN.

MADRID, Aug. 19.—Spanish irritation, over Germany assuming the possession of the Caroline Islands, is increasing. Newspapers here express indignation at the annexation. They say the act ignores any rights of Spain, and declare that the Spanish consul, not long before annexation, notified Germany that the Spanish government of Phillipine Islands had since last March been making preparation for the effective occupation of the Caroline Islands, and insists that in view of all these circumstances Germany's violation of international law is inexcusable.

The Hibbs Extradition Case at Washington.

Large Shipment of Gold by Mail to the East.

Maxwell Confesses to Having Killed Preller.

The Australian Mail Question Discussed.

Chances for the Canadian Route Good.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, August 19.—The full text of the decision of Judge Crease of the supreme court of British Columbia in the Hibbs extradition case has been received at the postoffice department. In his preamble Judge Crease says it is a case of considerable importance, because the complaint is for an offense which has no exact parallel in the history of extradition cases, and the danger that would arise from repetition, should it not prove to be an extraditable offense, will be easily understood when it is considered that there are some 15,000 postmasters who have the same facilities as the prisoner in the issuance of money orders in the United States, and if one such can with impunity unblushingly confess to having abused his trust by embezzling $10,000 in three days and then avoid all punishment by merely skipping across an imaginary boundary line, it is easy to understand the mischief that such an example to even a few of that great army of postmasters might do. Judge Crease pays a high compliment to Solicitor-General Goode and to the officers who traced Hibbs and brought about his arrest. He concludes as follows: "While I cannot conclude without acknowledging the assistance rendered by Solicitor Genereral Goode, I trust it will not be inappropriate if I echo the words of the learned judge in the Windsor case: With the law as it is I may wish that the government of the United States may see its advantages in adding to the catalogue of extradition crimes all those offences which have been for some time pressed upon its attention from this side of the line, and I do so with the object of saving endless time and expense to both countries. It would be especially welcome to those magistrates on both sides whose duty it is, under the Washington treaty, to carry out the law."

The transfer of gold coin from the subtreasury at San Francisco to the subtreasury in New York through the mails has been resumed. A package containing $300,000 arrived in New York yesterday. The amount already shipped by mail is about $11,000,000. It is learned that the original intention was to have it transferred from San Francisco to New York on United States war vessels by way of the isthmus of Panama during the recent possession of that territory by the United States naval forces. The troops were withdrawn, however, before the plan could be put in operation.

CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19 —The Chronicle's St. Louis special says: Late last evening Maxwell in the presence of several reporters and jail guards confessed that he killed Preller by administering accidentally an overdose of chloroform. In order to pin him down to his confession, he was asked to sign a statement to that effect, and this he did in the presence of several witnesses.

The Bulletin's New York special says: A prominent railway man, speaking on the question of the Australian mail subsidy, said: "I hear on excellent authority that efforts are being made in London to get the home government to grant a subsidy to steamers plying between Liverpool and Montreal, notwithstanding the fact that the latter port will not be available during the six winter months. The Canadian government will give special compensation for carrying the Australian mails over the Canada Pacific. The Australian colonies stand ready to subsidize their line from Victoria, B. C., to New Zealand and a weekly line of first class ships is to be put on. This project encounters serious opposition in London from owners of direct steamers and Suez steamers to Bombay. If the U. S. government would apply the $200,000 per annum it has been receiving from the British government for carrying the monthly Australian mails across the continent to the steamship line running from San Francisco to New Zealand and touching at Honolulu, first-class ships could be put on with weekly sailings and perhaps a less amount would induce the British line plying to British Columbia to touch at San Francisco and Honolulu on the inward and outward voyage. The subsidy to the present line expires Nov. 1st, but it is known that postmaster general Vilas already has authority to dispose of sufficient money to maintain the line via San Francisco until congress can act on the matter. Travel which is small at present will be increased by first class ships and by the choice of five rail routes across the north American continent. A through line from San Francisco to Portland and Puget Sound is claimed will be completed inside of 18 months, giving travelers the option of going this way. If Vilas has the interest of American shipping at heart at all he will see the advantage to be derived by making the above arrangement."

EASTERN STATES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Lee and Hanlan who are matched to row a two mile race at Jamaica Bay, Rockaway Beach, on Saturday went down to the beach yesterday to look at the course. The race will be the first Hanlan has rowed since his return from Australia. He is in good form and looks as well and hearty as ever. Lee also is good trim and the match promises to be a very close contest. The course is from the beach before Seaside house and will include two turns. The men have each put up $500.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—David P. McAlpin and Thomas P. Rowland of this city became sureties in the sum of $200,000 to-day for Messrs. Quintard & Ward, assignees of John Roach.

A dispatch from health commissioner Raymond, Brooklyn, warned the sanitary authorities to day to be on the lookout for Henry Ryners, 22 years old, a sailor of the schooner Jno. Gibson who had left the vessel now lying at Brooklyn dock, sick with symptoms suspiciously like those of yellow fever.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—The Western Export association held a meeting here today. About seventy five representatives of distillers in the northwest were present. In the question of admitting California to the association, it was finally decided to admit that state, provided organization was perfected.

No employé of the Wabash railway has quit work as yet in response to the order of the knights of labor.

SOUTHERN STATES.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19.—On the 27th instant Archbishop Gibbons, assisted by the Very Rev. Robert Fulton, provincial of the Order of Jesuits, will ordain United States sub-deacons, deacons and priests at Woodstock college, Worcester. Eleven of them are of the province of Maryland and New York, five of Missouri, three of New Orleans, two of New Mexico and one of California. Minor orders will be conferred on forty candidates.

CHARLESTON, Va., Aug. 19.—This afternoon, while cars were ascending and descending the decline railroad at the Cabin Creek coal mines, a short distance above the city, loaded cars broke loose and collided with a car in which were Taylor Oakford, president of the road, Thomas Petcock, Amos Mitchell, Joseph Hall and a man named Thoman, killing the four first named and seriously wounding Thoman. The Cabin Creek road is seven miles long and is used to transport coal from the mines to the Chesapeake track.

YESTERDAY'S DISPATCHES.

ENGLAND.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The yacht Sunbeam on which Gladstone and his wife and daughter are the guests of Sir Thomas W. Brassey, reached Bergen, Norway, this morning. Gladstone has already been greatly benefited by the trip. On Monday, while the yacht was at anchor, he went ashore and walked from Eidfjord to Veringfers, a distance of eighteen miles, notwithstanding the road was a rough one. Gladstone was not fatigued and was delighted with his jaunt.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—The constituents of Sir Charles Dilke at a meeting to day resolved to accept Sir Charles' denial of the charges brought against him, and to support him in the coming election.

EASTERN STATES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Wm. Carlton, 58 years of age, a well-known actor, committed suicide early this morning by turning on the gas and shutting off all ventilation from his room. The remains were removed to the undertakers and buried by actors' funds.

FRANCE.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—Rochefort, in his paper Entranaigeant, continues to demand vengeance of England for the alleged murder of Oliver Paine. He still thinks Lord Lyons, British ambassador, should be made the object of attack by friends of Paine, and advises them to publicly insult that gentleman.

ITALY.

ROME, Aug. 19.—Reforma says: Vecci and wife, who were arrested with Signor Dorides, editor of the Monitour de Rome, for selling a foreign power plans of Italian maritime defences, have attempted to commit suicide. Risigna says Dorides intended the plans for France.

School Board Meeting.

A meeting of the city school trustees took place yesterday afternoon at the city hall. Present—Chairman Harris, Trustees Braden, Heisterman, McMicking and Higgins.

Trustee Heisterman was appointed secretary pro tem.

It was moved by Trustee Higgins that, as the Johnson street school has an average attendance of ninety scholars, and as that was altogether too many pupils for one teacher, an efficient assistant be appointed.

Mr. Heisterman remarked that he had seen Mr. Pope, who informed him that an allowance of $25 per month would be made for three months for an assistant.

Trustee Braden coincided with Mr. Higgins' motion, and said that Miss Jackson had four classes, which was altogether too much for any one teacher too look after. He would nominate Mr. Wright for the position, at a salary of $25 per month for three months.

Trustee Higgins seconded the nomination, and Mr. Wright was elected.

Trustee Braden called attention to the overcrowded state of James' Bay school, where there is an average attendance of seventy, and thought that an allowance should be made for an assistant teacher for that school also.

Trustee Heisterman moved that certain sidewalks leading to the city schools required repairing and others required to be made, and that an application be made to the city council to have the necessary work done before the winter season sets in. Carried.

Trustee Higgins wished to know if the deputation of the school board had yet called upon the mayor and council with reference to obtaining a room for the purpose of carrying on a night school. He would move that the secretary be requested to ask the council to appoint some Wednesday evening to interview the mayor and council in the matter. Carried.

Trustee Higgins brought to the notice of the board the application of Mr. E. A. Phelps to allow his daughter to finish her education at the city school. He considered this an important application, and thought it better to enlarge this motion until a full attendance of the board met.

Trustee Braden thought that this matter should receive the consideration of the full board, and believed it advisable to defer it till a future meeting.

Trustee Higgins was quite agreeable to extend his motion until a future meeting, but hoped it would receive the board's early consideration, as he meditated leaving town shortly, and, as this matter was an important one, he would like to cast his vote and see the matter settled before his departure.

This concluded the business, and the meeting adjourned.

The bridge on the main road near Mrs. Fuller's farm was destroyed on Sunday by the extensive bush fires raging in that neighborhood. The railway contractors are keeping men watching the several bridges and trestles in the neighborhood of the fires.

All the grading and trestle work between Nanaimo and Chemainus was completed yesterday, and it is expected that the rails will be laid to Chemainus river by the end of the present week.

Dr. Walkem during his recent visit along the line to Chemainus, had no less than three accidents to attend to. Mr. King, clerk for Bell, Larkin & Patterson, in stepping out of a boat at Chemainus, fell on the beach cutting his face severely by striking against the rocks. A workman near Chemainus was badly injured by being struck by a falling tree, and at Camp No. 2, a tracklayer had his toes broken by a piece of rail.

Mr. Tendron, one of the directors of the Vancouver Coal Company, left by the steamer Amelia yesterday morning on his return to London, England. Mr. Tendron has expressed himself as highly pleased with Nanaimo and its surroundings, and as a souvenir of his visit donated $50 towards the building fund of Onward Lodge of Good Tamplars. His personal inspection of the extensive works and estate of the company will be of great advantage to his co-directors in deliberating on the business of the Vancouver Coal Company on the Pacific slope.

WATER INJUNCTION.—The case of the citizens against the corporation, asking for an injunction to restrain the council from supplying water to suburban residents, was adjourned until to-day, at the request of the water commissioner, Mr. Russell.

FARWELL CORRESPONDENCE.

A False Report Corrected.

A Cruel and Unprovoked Assassination.

The Illicit Whisky Traffic Protected.

FARWELL, Aug. 15, 1885.

Mr. J. Davis has not been shot. He is here and, to all appearance, in perfect health. A man, named James McCaulay, some few weeks' since, when on his way to Big Bend, dropped a pistol on the ground, the weapon exploded and the ball passed the calf of his leg. He recovered rapidly, and returned to Gold creek.

A MURDER.

On the 9th a murder was committed near Keef's saloon, about 14 miles east of here. It appears a lot of Swedes had been drinking at Keef's place all the afternoon, and as they were about to leave a dispute arose between the barkeeper, Albert Malott, and Andrew Johnston, about some cigars. Johnston and his brother walked away west, crossed 15 Mile creek bridge, and when about 100 yards further on the road Malott overtook them, carrying a Winchester rifle in his hand. A few more words passed about the cigars, the young brother offering to pay for them, when Malott stepped back a few feet and shot Johnston dead. Mr Kirkup arrested the prisoner the next day. On the 11th inst. Mr. Sproat visited the scene, taking Dr. J. L. Wertman with him. On the 13th the prisoner was committed for trial for the murder of Johnston. The bullet entered about an inch below the right nipple, took a downward course, broke a rib, then took an upward direction and lodged under the right shoulder. The bullet was as flat as if it had been fired against a wall.

KEEF'S SALOON

is one of a great number scattered through the passes east and west from here. They appear to flourish under the mounted and special Dominion police force. These zealous officials appear to confine their energies to harassing hotel keepers and others holding provincial licenses at Farwell and Eagle Pass Landing. G. H. Johnston arrived here on the 13th passing any number of illicit gin mills on his way from the east, and commenced business here by pulling

TWO LICENSED HOUSES.

The cases will be appealed, so the Dominion police will get neither whiskey nor cash, which is severe on them. A Mr. Lasher, one of Todd's constables, came through here the other day. He talked a great deal, said he had a general search warrant to operate on all teams, &c., &c., and search and capture all liquors. If possible I will obtain and send you a copy of this document, it must be a curiosity.

ENORMOUS QUANTITIES OF LIQUOR,

brandy, whisdey, beer, etc., etc., are being brought up from Colville. Three boats brought $4000 worth last week. How the merchants down west stand such an imposition on their business as a man like Todd is past the comprehension of the people here.

THE WEATHER

has been very warm here for the past few days, from 85° to 100° in the shade. The government engineer says that there is no chance of the track reaching here until the middle of October, if then. There were 5100 men on the works between the Beaver and Farwell in July. A great number have crossed the river, and are working between here and Griffin Lake, 17 miles.

All the articles you read in the Calgary Herald about matters here are pure rot.

H.

Another Murder.

About a week ago a most brutal murder was committed at Victoria Lake, ten miles east of Eagle Pass. Three Swedes, who kept a whisky mill, it is supposed quarreled over a division of the profits, and the two younger of them set upon the elder and kicked him in such a brutal manner that he died several days afterwards. On this occurring the two murderers skipped, one, it is supposed, going east and the other west. Both have got away, and it is now improbable that they will be brought to answer for their dastardly crime.

A DARING HIGHWAYMAN.—Mr. Gately, who drives the mail stage between this city and Burrard Inlet, reports that as he was approaching the city yesterday afternoon he was stopped by a masked man with a musket, who ordered him to deliver up. There was only one passenger in the stage, Mr. Brewster. The driver parried with the highwayman for a few minutes, and then drove on without being further molested. The man probably concluded that it wasn't worth while to go through the stage. He certainly took great risks, for it would scarcely be possible for him to avoid capture. The police were notified, and are on the lookout.—Columbian.

MAINLAND FREIGHT.—The Yosemite brought down yesterday 100 cases of salmon from the Delta Canning Co. and 1000 cases of Wellington brand, consigned to Welch, Rithet & Co. They will form part of the cargo of the bark Rover of the Seas for London, and were loaded direct from the steamer; 275 bales of hay for J. R. Tait and 74 bales and 12 hogs for J. C. Henderson were also brought down.

OFFICER KIRKUP brought the man Johnson, charged with murdering the Swede at Fifteen-mile Creek, east of Farwell, down as far as New Westminter, where he is lodged in gaol, awaiting trial. The prisoner owns up to having committed the deed, but does not seem to realize his critical position.

THE LIGHT-FINGERED CHINEE.—Officer Young yesterday arrested a Chinaman charged with stealing $114 in cash and two ounces of gold dust from a brother Celestial sleeping in the same room. The gold dust was found on him when arrested.

FROM THE INLET.—The Slope arrived at six o'clock yesterday from Burrard Inlet with three passengers and 16,000 feet of lumber from Tiffin's mill for Larkin, Connolly & Co., which was unloaded at the dry dock.

COAL EXPORTS.—The aggregate coal exports of Seattle and Tacoma for July were 43,000 tons, all of which went to California.

THE TRIUMPH.—This war-ship is reported (by private telegram) to have left San Francisco for this station yesterday.

RUN DOWN IN THE RIVER.

A Boat Filled with Chinese Struck in the Fog.

Four minutes after leaving the landing at New Westminster yesterday the steamer Yosemite struck a row-boat, with seven Chinese on board. The Chinese were descried just a few seconds before being struck attempting to pull across the bows of the steamer. Seeing the steamer they shouted, but it was not thirty seconds between the shout and the crash. The Yosemite at the time was going at the rate of ten knots an hour, her usual speed being about thirteen, the fog at the time on the river being so dense that objects one hundred feet ahead could not be discerned. The whistle was blown every minute, and when the shout was heard the engines were reversed to full speed astern. The steamer stopped, boats were lowered and four of the Chinese saved, but the other three could not be found, and are undoubtedly drowned. The unfortunate Chinese had evidently started for New Westminster but became lost and bewildered in the thick fog, and did not hear or see the steamer until too late. Had they backed their boat when they first saw the steamer they could have saved themselves, but pulling across the bow, they were cut in two about two-thirds from the stern of their boat. The four saved were landed at one of the canneries.

There is apparently no blame attached to the steamer's officers, for they did all in their power to prevent the accident and save the occupants of the boat.

Supreme Court.

(Before Justices Crease, Gray, McCreight and Walkem.)

Carson & Eholt vs. Martley and Clark—The judgment of the full court in this cause was to-day delivered by Mr. Justice McCreight, and was in effect reversing the judgment of the honorable the chief justice, at nisi prius, when judgment was given in favor of the defendants, Martley and Clark, in the sums of $200 and $500 respectively, against the plaintiffs jointly. To-day's judgment reverses the judgment of the lower court, and gives judgment in favor of the plaintiff, Carson, on his claim for $1800 and costs, and reducing the damages of the defendant, Clark, on his counter claim to $250, and making the damages of the defendant, Martley, on his counter claim nominal as against Carson & Eholt, and upholding Carson's water record of 1868.

Wraight vs. Young—The four judges rendered separate judgments to the following effect: 1st, directing a new trial; 2nd, no costs of appeal to either party; 3rd, costs of first trial to be dealt with on the new trial. Mr. Justice Crease was of opinion that the chief justice's judgment in favor of the defendant Young, should be sustained on the ground that the court had all the facts before it and ought therefore to deal with the case, and not drive the parties to a new trial, more especially as there could be no question, upon the evidence, that the defendant must eventually succeed.

NAPIERVILLE, Aug. 13.—H. J. Herbert's barn was struck by lightning today and consumed with the contents. Loss, $1,500; no insurance.

OTTAWA, Aug. 14.—Two children, named McVicar, living near Pokenham, were poisoned to-day by eating the seeds of poppy blossoms. One is dead and the other is dying.

Sir Charles Tupper arrived this evening, and was presented with an address of welcome.

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—A cattle dealer named William Cormack, from Chesley, County Bruce, lost $3,000 yesterday. He put the money in his stocking for safety and boarded a train for the west, but when entering his berth, having forgotten his action, he removed his stockings. On examining them later the money had disappeared.

TORONTO, Aug. 13.—Colonel Otter will be transferred to the new infantry school at London and Colonel Grassett takes his place in the infantry school here.

A proposition was submitted some time ago to the minister of militia for a holiday review of the troops from the province who took part in the Northwest campaign during the exhibition here next month, and an answer was received this morning that the minister would do all in his power to have the request complied with, but he could not as yet guarantee that the review would take place.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 13.—Information has been received here of a peculiar accident in the township of Delaware. A young lady named Faulds jumped out of a buggy, breaking her leg, and then fell forward on the broken bone, which penetrated the abdomen, causing her death.

AT DAWN.

[Richard Nixon in New Orleans Times-Democrat.]

A dawn where all the churches' spires
Are circled by white crowns of mist;
And clouds whose hues of amethysts
Await the sun's transmuting fire

A river with sad, sullen lips
That fill the air with hollow wail;
While faint across the pale skies trail
The cob-web ropes of swaying ships.

The lazy fog, still dark with night,
Rolls off, a slow-subsiding flood.
Just over head two sea-gulls stud
The air with diamond points of light.

The skiffs move by as noiselessly
As passing shadows of a cloud;
The boatman's call is not more loud
Than echoes of a melody.

The sea-gulls startled, wheel and cry
As thro' the waves they catch a gleam
Of some white shape borne down the stream,
With sightless eyes turned toward the sky.

Ox-Horn Chairs.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

"You have no idea what a demand there is for this style of chairs," said a well-known furniture dealer to a reporter, as he proudly pointed at a beautiful specimen, made entirely of horns and exquisitely finished with silk plush and fringe "No, it is not exactly a new idea," continued the furniture man, "for my firm has been turning them out for nearly a year. This style of horn chairs, finished with silk plush, easily sells for $100, while those finished with leather bring $75."

"How are they manufactured?"

"Well, you see, there are twenty-two horns used in this seat which we are examining. Of course a smaller number of horns can be used; in some styles only eighteen are required, but these do not have as neat an appearance and are much cheaper. The mode of manufacture is quite simple. The horns after being thoroughly cleansed, steamed, and scraped to the proper thickness, are filled or stuffed with sawdust and glue. After being thoroughly dried and polished, the horns are fastened into the proper position with brass rivets and glue. Then follows the upholstering operation, which is very simple, but upon the whole the chairs thus made may be considered very artistic."

"And the demand—is there much call for this style of furniture?"

"Yes, indeed. There are many chairs now in use in several of the Nob-hill residences. We have shipped them to France, the Pacific Islands, and many to the eastern and northern states. Orders are constantly coming in, and I may safely say the demand is increasing."

Copper-Greened Pickles.

[New York Letter.]

Five of the wholesale pickle-dealers of Brooklyn, N. Y., admit that they use copper for the purpose of imparting a fresh and inviting appearance to their commodities, and one of them describes the process by which the fictitious coloring is imparted as follows: The pickles are placed in a vat and subjected to a steam heat of 140 to 160 degrees Fahrenheit. In the vat a quantity of alum and copper plates are added and the innocent cucumber or onion is subjected to contact with these harmless ingredients for a term of from three to nine hours. The pickles are then carefully washed, and are ready for the palates of the public.

One dealer said he discountenanced the use of copper plates and said he only used crystal of blue vitriol, a most appetizing adjunct. This highly agreeable method of "greening" the pickles and poisoning the public will not be further permitted by the health officer. He prefers his pickles straight.

Designs for Carpets.

[Scientific American.]

In the school of designs, in South Kensington, there are several quotations which are regarded as axiomatic, and they unequivocally direct the efforts of the pupils. The following is the rule upon carpet design:

1. The surface of a carpet, serving as a ground to support all objects, should be quiet and negative, without strong contrast of either form or colors.

2. The leading forms should be so disposed as to distribute the pattern over the whole floor, not pronouncing either in the direction of breadth or length, all "up and down" treatments being erroneous.

3. The decorative forms should be flat, without shadow or relief, whether derived from ornament or direct from flowers or foliage.

4. In color the general ground should be negative, low in tone, and inclining to the tertiary hues.

Capacities of Eggs.

[Outing.]

There is nothing better than an egg; it is the unit of perfection. Simply boiled or roasted it is entirely good; but, when cooked by madame, it takes as many forms as protoplasm. I like a juggler, she can do anything with eggs. Well beaten, with milk or flour, she makes batter cakes, which we take turns in frying, exhausting ourselves in the effort to turn with dexterity, at the right moment, a cake the full size of the pan. Maple sirup is delectable upon these cakes. You may not believe it, but a slice of stale bread, dipped in hot water, buttered and spread with French mustard and cooked with three eggs as an omelet, make a capital dish. With a box of sardines one can make a meal of it.

The Passion Flower.

[Chicago Herald.]

The usual belief is that the "passion" flower derived its name because of the resemblance, or fancied resemblance, of the parts of the plant to the instruments of the Savior's "passion" and crucifixion. Thus the three nails through the hands and feet on the cross are represented by the stigmas, five anthers represent the five wounds, the rays of glory or (as others say) the crown of thorns are represented by the rays of the corona, the ten parts of the perianth represent ten of the apostles (Peter, who denied the Savior, and Judas, his betrayer, being absent). The hands of the persecutors are supposed to be indicated by the finger-like leaves of the plant and the "scourges" in the tendrils.

Consumption of Sugar.

[Chicago Herald.]

We eat a good deal more sugar than we did five years ago. In 1880 the annual consumption of sugar per head in this country was 41.2 pounds. In 1884 it was 51.4 pounds. At the same time much less molasses is used. Our total consumption of sweets is fifty-six pounds per head. In England it is sixty-seven pounds. We eat more than twice as much as France, three times as much as Germany, and eight times as much as Russia.

THE KING OF THE DUMPS.

An Irish Sovereign Who Rules in Peace a Host of Italian Subjects.

[New York Sun.]

Years ago a large portion of the Tenth ward in South Brooklyn was known as "the Meadows." The land was barely higher than the level of the bay, and was at times overflowed for a mile. Now it is gridironed by streets and avenues, and the few remnants of the old ponds and hollows are being rapidly filled in by the ash-cart man, the excavator, and the street-cleaner. These dumps are frequented by rag-pickers, who ransack every load taken there. Formerly Irish, now nearly all are Italians. With them every morning is an old Irishman, who, rain or shine, appears with a dilapidated horse and a still more dilapidated wagon, and remains until dusk or until his wagon is loaded with the flotsam and jetsam of the streets. He is known as "Mike, the King of the Dumps." His ragged Italian vassals and customers speak of him as "Il Signor Irishamanna."

When the reporter approached he was chaffering with an Italian over a piece of lead pipe the latter had unearthed in the dump. A few coins were handed over, and the metal was pitched into the ancient wagon. "There's nothing like human nature," said Mike. "Thim Eyetalians are all thieves, and that's how I make my money out of them. That fellow has got his bag full of fifty or sixty pounds of paper and rags, and now he finds that chunk of pipe. If it was you or me we'd have some friend carry it home for us. But not much will the Eyetalian. He wouldn't trust his own brother, and so he sells it to me for 15 cents. He didn't know what he was selling. It was lead pipe, but it was lined with solid block tin. I'll get about 80 cents for it. Them Eyetalians sometimes find gold and silver, but that they never sell to me. Everything else they do. One day one of them came to me with a watch chain he had hooked out. 'Lead, no silver?' he said. I looked at it, and it looked very queer. I thought it was pewter, but it was too heavy. But I answered at a guess and said: 'No good, kind of lead.' He wanted a half dollar, but I got it for a quarter. I didn't know what the stuff was, and on my way home that day stopped in at a jeweler's store and asked them. They said it was a French metal called platinum, and was worth $50. I have been laying for the same stuff ever since, but have never run across it a second time.

"What do I buy mostly? Metals, iron, steel, lead, tin, brass, pewter, solder, tomato-cans, wire, and the like. Then I buy rags and paper and all sorts of odds and ends. One time I bought a small bronze statue of Luther. I got it for 30 cents, and when I had cleaned it up I sold it for $8. The paper and cotton go to the paper mills; cloth, worn-out clothes, and woolen rags to the hat manufacturers; tomato-cans, tin clippings, and everything with tin in it to a man who has a furnace in Jersey somewhere. He melts out all the tin and sells it, and then he casts what is left into sash-weights and other cheap castings. For zinc, bronze, copper, and pewter there's always a good demand, and they bring first-rate prices.

"There are lots of new trades to-day which use up things that formerly were no good to any one. Rubber, bone, ivory, leather, horn, celluoid, cane and umbrella heads, and old bottles, all pay for the picking. Of course they don t pay much. Perhaps they average $1 a day, but that's big money for an old yetalian woman, who lives on 50 cents a week. Them Eyetalians will do anything. They're worse than pig-tailed Chinamen. But I don't growl much. In the old days, when there was no one on the dump but Irish, I made only a couple of dollars a day, and I was young and active. Now the Eyetalians have driven everybody out of the business, and it is a very cold day when I don't make a $5 note.

Jolting as a Cure for Dyspepsia.

[New York Mail and Express.]

A druggist on Broadway said that the stage coaches were the healthiest riding vehicles in existence, none excepted. "Why, all the ladies who rode daily in them were in excellent health, as a general rule. Some who were my customers and bought a great deal of medicine to assist digestion before they began to ride on the lumbering omnibuses, never suffered from that complaint afterward. Actually, I believe riding in those coaches cured me of dyspepsia. For ten years I rode down to my store almost daily in them. When I started I had a bad case of dyspepsia. In a year I felt considerably better, and in three years I was entirely well. I attribute my recovery to the coaches. The exertion of getting in, and then the forward lunge to put the change in the box; then, perhaps, to return to the rear again and get a seat, and while on the way to fall over a half dozen laps—these were minor affairs compared to the jolting, jumping seat.

"Finally I became a coach-riding fiend. I became used to the jolts and bumps, and never felt so contented as when I could knock over several passengers in my attempt to sit down. I became an expert, and could tell others who were veteran coachers and reckless of results. It is a good feeling to have a sure sign of health. I can ride in a car now, but it is monotonous and tame and utterly without exertion. These cars running down Broadway mean indigestion and dyspepsia, for they will have no spasmodic jolts at each block to dash a man's foot or two from his seat. But I am a druggist and have got the medicine, so I can't complain."

Novelty at Manhattan Beach.

[New York Times.]

A new feature of entertainment has been introduced at Manhattan Beach. The large marine amphitheatre has been changed into an exhibition hall, and twice each day during the season there will be novel entertainments in connection with a brilliant prismatic fountain. The waters of the fountain will be illuminated in all colors of the rainbow by electric and calcium lights. Each entertainment will begin with a series of dissolving views, after which the scene will be transferred into a variegated grotto under the sea, where Neptune will appear and summon nymphs from the deep. The official [illegible] of this exhibition says: "[illegible]tradition of the ideal mermaid will be realized, represented by young ladies [illegible]g in the briny deep. Giant frogs, sea nymphs, and all the hosts of water spirits will add their voices and energy to this ocean pageant."

Two of Them.

[Boston Post.]

"Ah, Miss Smyth, going walking?"

"Yes, I am just going to take my little dog out."

"Well, ah, may I have the pleasure of going along with you?"

"Oh, yes, indeed, I would just as soon have two of you."

He didn't go.

A German chemist is said to have discovered an antidote for strychnine.

Soap Bubbles.

[Exchange.]

A good rule for making soap bubbles is this:

Into a quart bottle of rain water put four ounces of pure palm oil soap sliced into thin shavings. Shake the mixture well until the water will dissolve no more soap. Let it stand until it settles perfectly clear. Then add to two volumes of this soap solution one volume of pure concentrated glycerine.

This preparation will make stout bubbles whose changes in color and shifting of hues will repay for the trouble.

The Odor of the Hayfield.

[American Agriculurist.]

Going from New England to a western state many years ago, the writer was struck with the difference between the two localities in the haying season. In the older states the air at haying time is redolent of the most delightful fragrance, making it a pleasure to be out of doors. At haying time in the western locality there was only a clean, weedy odor, quite unlike that to which we had been accustomed. In looking into the reason for this lack of pleasant odor at haying, we examined the hay, and, while all the usual grasses were present, we could find no trace of the sweet-scented vernal grass, anthoxanthum odoratum, so common in eastern meadows. In itself this grass has little value. Indeed, its chief merit lies in its odor. This is developed as the herbage dries, and a few spears of this grass will impart its fragrance to a large mass of hay. This grass should always form a part of a mixture for seeding a lawn.

Costly Buttons for a Traveling Dress.

[New York Cor. Brooklyn Eagle.]

I saw a young woman who was about to start for a tour in Texas and Mexico. She wished to take plenty of money along to those regions of highwaymen and in a way which would baffle them. So she had a traveling dress trimmed lavishly with buttons costing $5 to a $100 each. The cheaper ones contained gold pieces neatly laid between the wooden molds, which were covered with cloth in the usual fashion. The costlier buttons were similarly stuffed with United States notes. As fast as she requires cash she will clip off these adornments, replacing them with ordinary ones of the same outward pattern.
